

WORKBOOK 07 LESSON 18

FILL THE BLANKS IN EACH PARAGRAPH WITH THE CORRECT WORDS FROM THE LIST ABOVE IT.

TIRE, TIRED, TIRING, TIRELESS, TIRELESSLY, TIREDNESS, TIRELESSNESS

If you believe an issue is important, don't choose a tired candidate. Instead, vote for an enthusiastic candidate who will work tirelessly to achieve the result you want. A political campaign is tiring, so a candidate should have a lot of energy.

REAL, REALIST, REALLY, REALISTIC, REALITY, REALISM

A realist is a person who believes in being realistic when looking at problems. He or she thinks solid plans have more REAL value than wishes and dreams.

MEMORY, MEMORABLE, MEMORIZE, MEMORIZED, MEMORIZATION

Joe often waits until the last minute to study for a test. Then he needs to memorize the answers instead of taking the time to understand them. Sometimes he's lucky, and his memory holds the answers until after the test. However, he would learn more if he thought about what he had read instead of just repeating memorized answers.

CLASSIFY, CLASSIFIED, CLASSIFICATION

Biology uses a classification system based on family relationships and anatomical similarities between different plants and animals. The classified ads in newspaper use a similar system. They organize or classify the things people want to sell according to related types of products: cars, clothes, furniture and even services.

TOLERATE, TOLERANT, TOLERANTLY, TOLERABLE, TOLERATION, TOLERANCE

Tolerant people are willing to accept who look, act or think differently than they do. They can listen tolerantly when people disagree with them. Many of them have only one thing they find hard to tolerate: intolerance. It makes them angry when others do not show them the same tolerancy they do.

WORK, WORKER, WORKING (One of these is used two times.)

An employer likes to hire a worker he believes will work hard and do a good job. If he needs well-qualified employees, he needs to provide good working conditions so they will want to continue to work for him.

FILL IN THE BLANKS WITH THE CORRECT PREPOSITIONS: OF, UNTIL, AT, ABOUT, IN, AFTER, BEFORE, WITH, FOR, UP, ON, UNDER, BY.

Some people say that little children remind them of angels. But when you have one or two "little angels" at home, you begin to think that angels don't exist. If you have a cat, I'm sure it'll agree with you. Some children have such a sweet smile, except for the smile they give you when they "accidentally" put toothpaste in your slippers while you are taking a bath.

When we think about angels, we think of soft music and quiet places. A house where there is a little child is only quiet when the sweet little child is doing something he or she is not supposed to. Little children look like angels when they are sleeping, until you leave the room and see the mess he or she left for you to clean before falling asleep. So you clean the house as quiet as possible, therefore slowly, and that takes time. After you finished, you have to go to the laundry to take the cat out of the washing machine, give him a chance to rest, and prepare something for the little angel before he wakes up again.

And while you fix the delicious food that you know your little angel isn't going to like, you smile and think about how sweet he is close to your nephew who likes to write on the furniture. Suddenly you hear something. It must be "little angel", because the cat hid under the couch. "Sweet little thing, he doesn't even cry", you think. Of course, he was very busy mixing his baby oil and his baby powder on the carpet of the house that isn't even yours! So you get very angry, and either he looks at you and cries or looks afraid, and next time he throws his shampoo instead.

Time to eat. After you managed making him eat two spoons of the delicious food in one hour, you smell something very familiar for (to) those who have little angels like you. Time to change his clothes. "I wonder if little angels do this too...", You think.

He seems to be growing so fast (sometimes not fast enough). He is learning how to talk. He asks you 9327 questions a day, usually followed by "Why?". That's the hard part. When you think you are about to become completely crazy, he gets on you lap and gives you the sweetest hug, and turns to you and says, "I love you mommy"; that's when you understand why they call little children angels.
