

WORKBOOK 07 LESSON 20

FILL IN THE BLANKS WITH THE CORRECT PREPOSITIONS: ABOUT, AT, IN, OF, FOR, TO, AFTER, UP, AMONG, FROM, INSIDE, OVER, WITHOUT, WITH, UNTIL, FROM, BEFORE.

If we only knew just how much we have in our hearts, maybe it would be easier to live among others without misunderstandings. Wouldn't it be easy if you could notice that the person that sat next to you in the bus could be a wonderful friend? That he or she likes the same things you do?

If we only knew just how long it takes for a tree to grow, would we cut it? If we knew what flowers feel when we pick them, maybe we wouldn't. Sometimes it seems we don't know what we are doing. In fact, I don't think we ever know what we are doing. Otherwise, the world wouldn't be hungry.

I think that inside ourselves, we are all very lonely. We seem to be kind of lost in some sort of strange world. We don't know where the wind comes from nor do we know where it's going to. We never know what to say if someone says something good or bad to us; the words usually come out before we know it.

Sometimes we don't feel very good about who or how we are, and we change our clothes or buy a new car, but that doesn't change anything in us. If you look at a little baby of about five months, you will notice that sometimes he or she looks at one hand and at the other hand, trying to feel what he or she is doing.

I go to the mountains and look over (at) the valley, and even there alone, I don't feel free, because I know I have to go some day. I'm not free to stay and i'm not aware of what my hands do when I get angry. Sometimes I feel so ugly, and it's usually because i'm in a bad mood, therefore I don't really feel myself, otherwise I wouldn't feel ugly. Or am I ugly and I can't feel it? Have you ever felt yourself when you look at someone you don't like? If we learned how to feel things, maybe we would prefer to feel a flower in our hands instead of a gun. Who knows? If we only knew how to feel ourselves among others, we wouldn't feel so lonely.

When we learn how to feel with our hands and our hearts, what other hands and other hearts feel, the wars will finally end. Until then, the only thing we will know how to feel, is pain.

LISTEN TO THE AUDIO FROM THIS LESSON AND TRY TO TRANSCRIBE THE SENTENCES:

THEY DISAPPEARED WHIT THE WIND, I THINK.
