There are many different holidays in each country, and there is one holiday which most countries celebrate, which is Christmas.

When you ask a person what she thinks of Christmas, you may get all different kinds of answers. Nice ones and not very nice ones. Mother will probably think: "Christmas means I'll have to spend a whole week in the kitchen!", And fathers may think: "Here goes all the money I saved to buy a new car..." Or even, "I hate wearing the hot Santa Claus suit! Why me?!?!".

Shops and stores love Christmas, to them it means great business, and to the poor and lonely Christmas is most of the time a reason to be sad. In other words, Christmas has lost its true meaning. Unfortunately, the world today only believes in Christmas if it comes with a lot of presents and food.

I don't think I need to mention the meaning of Christmas, the name says it for itself. It tells a story about someone who came to the world to leave us a message. But apparently some of us didn't quite understand it. (In fact, I don't think anybody did.) And by the time the message got to us, it was changed by people who read it before us. So we don't even know what the message was about. All we know is that he was a good man, and his words were worth gold, too good for most people to understand, too simple for people to believe in. But he left us this holiday to which, in English, was given his name.

The purpose of this holiday may be to try to understand why he came or why we should be with the people we love on this day. It certainly has nothing to do with money. It may have to be with giving and taking, but nothing to do with "presents". It may even have to do with special presents, but the kind of presents that aren't available in shops or stores; they're probably not available for the most of us because we don't really know the real meaning of love. At least, not like he loved.

So anyways he have something to think about next Christmas besides Santa Claus and the turkey with potatoes mom makes. By the way, Merry Christmas, whether it's already Christmas or whether it's not!!!
